Former Minister Is Said To Have Been Married On Three Occasions Already.

WIFE NO. 2 MAKES A DISCOVERY

Chicago Woman Visits Her Spouse In Milwaukee And Hears Stories That Cause Her To Hire An Attorney.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-MARK.]
Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 1.—According to the Milwaukee police Rev. Orlando Burt, an ex-Methodist minister, who came to this city two months ago, has three wives living from none of whom he has obtained a divorce. One wife, probably the first, was Susan Smith, daughter of Robert G. Smith, a Newton, Pa., newspaper man. About a year ago he married a dashing Chicago brunette at Waukegan, Ill. Early in the present month he wooed and wedded Miss Anna Lemke, 749 Twenty-third street, Milwaukee, who still expresses the belief that her husband's matrimonial complications will eventually be satisfactorily settled.

Is Visited by Wife No. 2.
Burt came to Milwaukee ten months ago and obtained employment as an advertising writer. He said he had been a Methodist minister, but that he had been compelled to relinquish his loved vocation on account of a breakdown of the vocal organs. While he was wooing, Mrs. Burt, whom he accidentally met on the street one day, his Chicago go wife, visited him, and spent several days with him, being introduced to several of his acquaintances as his wife. During her visit Mrs. Burt heard stories which impelled her to engage a Chicago attorney named Langley, and after a heated interview Burt admitted that he had married Miss Smith of Newton, but insisted that he had obtained a divorce from her.

Compliments of Father-in-Law.
A letter to Robert G. Smith, father of Miss Susan Smith, elicited a reply to the effect that he much deplored the fact that his daughter had married Burt, but that such was nevertheless true. "He never obtained a divorce from my daughter," continued Mr. Smith, "although she has abundant grounds for one should she care to apply. When he said he had obtained a legal separation he lied."

Was Not After Money.
Upon receipt of this letter, July 21, Attorney Langley wrote to Burt in Milwaukee, accusing him of being a bigamist. At that time he did not know of the Milwaukee bride. On receiving this letter Burt told his employees he must immediately go to his wife in Chicago, who was ill. Burt is now at Niagara Falls, and has just sent his latest wife $5, saying he hopes to be with her soon.
The Milwaukee police are investigating with a view to ascertaining whether or not Burt has still more wives. In all instances recorded he married girls with little or no cash, and it is certain that it was not money he was after in the course of his adventures.

CHINESE BOYCOTT IS IN OPERATION NOW

Widespread Boycott Against American Goods Continues in China.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Shanghai, August 1.—The widespread boycott against American goods, as a protest against the Chinese exclusion law was put into effect today.

Washington, August 1.—Rumors that a boycott against American goods in China was contemplated, reached this country as long ago as last summer, but if the government had similar information, it was, apparently suppressed and disbelieved by the officials at Washington. The situation, to state it plainly, is growing alarming and officials no longer attempt to deny it. China is admitting on all hands to be the greatest undeveloped buying market in the world today. Its potentialities are, as has often been shown, a little short of marvelous. The Chinese government is indeed reported in all its dispatches as being opposed to the boycott, but its sincerity is doubted. It now seems certain that American business men with interests in China will, during the next session of Congress, persuade the national legislators to take an attitude less severe toward China in order to ward off the threatened serious blow to American commerce in the Orient.

WILSON PLANS TO CLEAN HOUSE

Secretary Of Agriculture Visits The President And Discusses Matters.

WILL STILL RETAIN HIS PORTFOLIO

Official Proposes To Drive All Grafters From His Department Before He Resigns His Office.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 1.—There is a new crop of scandal in the department of agriculture. The officials involved this time are those of the bureau of animal industry and the weather bureau.

Secretary Wilson conferred with President Roosevelt Monday, and, backed by the chief executive, is going back to Washington to give the department of agriculture a shaking up that it has not had since it was created.

Secretary Wilson refuses to resign. With grim determination he declares he will clean his own house and drive out the grafters if he has to reorganize it from top to bottom.

New Scandal Develops.
First came the cotton scandal, which led to the dismissal of Edwin S. Holmes, Jr., associate statistician, and the flight of John Hyde, statistical expert.

Then Dr. George T. Moore, a scientist in the bureau of plant industry, was compelled to resign last week as a result of the exposure of his connection with the Nitro-Culture company of Westchester, Pa.

Now comes a fresh crop of scandal, involving the bureau of animal industry. The work of inspecting and tagging all the meat products turned out in the United States for export abroad comes under this bureau, which is in charge of Dr. D. S. Salmon.

Tags for Carcasses.

For a long time after the bureau was organized difficulty was found in securing the right kind of tags or labels to be placed on beef and mutton intended for export. Finally, three or four years ago, a local genius was said to have invented an ideal label for the purposes of the bureau of animal industry. He also invented a paste for attaching the labels to meat and an ink for printing the labels that were as meritorious as the labels themselves. The paste was unusually tenacious, but contained no ingredients that could affect the meat deleteriously, while the ink would not run or fade and was as innocuous as the paste.

Inventor Acquires Competency.
A company was organized for the manufacture and printing of these labels and the making of the paste with the inventor at the head of it. But, it is said, the money to finance the concern was supplied by one of the scientists attached to the department, who became a partner in the company. The concern received contracts for the special label running up to large figures and the inventor, from a poor man speedily became prosperous.

Luxury for Weather Bureau.

The weather bureau, which is presided over by Willis L. Moore, must explain something. Frequent reference has been made in the last three years to a summer annex of the weather bureau, which Mr. Moore is establishing in the Blue Ridge mountains in Virginia. It is said a sum approximating $100,000 already has been spent on this establishment by the department, and this without special authority from Congress. The latter appropriates annually a lump sum for new buildings for the weather service. Of these funds Mr. Moore is said to have taken each year for three or four years a good slice to erect a pretentious group of buildings, which now constitute the Blue Ridge mountain summer annex to the weather bureau. To this annex some of the department officials and their families and friends retire for their week end outings and for longer vacations during the heated spells, when Washington becomes too hot for comfort. Fine horses and carriages are kept at the summer annex, and it is understood to be otherwise supplied with all conveniences and luxuries of a gentleman's country house.

BIG DIVIDENDS MADE ON WALL STREET

Unusually Large Division of Receipts from Different Industries.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, August 1.—The distribution of dividends in Wall Street today was unusually large. Among the largest declarations were made by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, the Rock Island railroad and the Reading Railroad.

The Bethlehem Steel Corporation paid a dividend of 1 1/2 per cent. While no statement of the earnings is issued, it is understood in well-informed quarters that the earnings of the company during the last year were about $6,000,000. The establishment of Bethlehem steel on a dividend paying basis receives additional interest because of the personal relations of Charles Schwab with the company.

AN ENTERTAINING PROGRAM GIVEN

MUSIC, MAGIC AND MOVING PICTURES AT CHAUTAUQUA.

A BIG CROWD LAST EVENING

Farewell Salute Given Jubilee Singers—Wickersham on Attractive Topic.

(By Clarence Van Buren.)

Gazette Headquarters, Chautauqua Grounds.—Last evening's program was greeted by more than a thousand people. Ferguson's Dixie Jubilee Singers made their farewell appearance, the Morphet and Stevenson Novelty company furnished a delightful entertainment of musical specialties, magic and ventriloquism, and moving pictures were introduced. The concert commenced at half past seven and lasted until after eight. Each number on the program had not before been rendered here by the troupe but a few of the encores were repetition by request. Among those songs which were sung for the second time was "Swanee River," which was a solo by Mrs. Buckner, the soprano. Her selection was liberally applauded and the singers recalled. The program given was as follows: "Great Camp Meeting in the Wilderness," Miss Hocker.

"Good Night, Beloved," George C. Hall. "Swallows," Mrs. Buckner. "Pork Chops is the Sweetest Flower that Grows," Robert L. Moore. "Water Lilies," Quartette. Robert L. Moore, George C. Hall, A. B. Willoughby and W. C. Buckner.

"Dusky Maid" (From the "Beauty and the Beast"), Company. W. C. Buckner in bidding farewell to the audience until next year said he wished to publicly thank the Hotel Myers for the courteous treatment which had been tendered them during their stay in the city and that the troupe thoroughly appreciated the spirit in which Janesville received them. The Chautauqua salute which had not yet been used was then given the Jubilees by the assemblage. The sight of the hundreds of waving handkerchiefs was a pretty one.

Wonderful Magic. Harry Morphet and the Stevenson Novelty company is a magician better by far than the average. There was no chance in the tent and on the open stage for the use of traps or curtains and his work was purely sleight-of-hand. This exhibition was clever in the extreme, producing many things from nothing, restoring torn paper, mending cards and numberless other tricks. His ventriloquistic powers he also demonstrated. William H. Stevenson's musical numbers were largely new, playing upon tumblers, with bells and various odd instruments. He was assisted by Mr. Morphet in several of the pieces.

Moving Pictures. The motion pictures were shown for the first time last night. These will close the evening program each day during the remainder of the week and next Sunday night Mr. Alfred Flude, the operator and lecturer, will illustrate the address of Dr. Grant on "Pope Leo." Among the interesting films shown last evening were "Ali Babi and the Forty Thieves," "Soldiers Fighting in the Philippines," "A Part of the Naval Battle of Santiago," and a Mexican Bull Fight.

Yesterday afternoon an audience of seven hundred people enjoyed the concert of the Dixie Jubilee Singers and were held for more than an hour and a half by the eloquence of L. B. Wickersham who with the topic, "Chickens Come Home to Roost," occupied the lecture platform. His central theme was that as one sows he shall reap. He said he wished to connect the prevailing idea of providence. He believed that the Divine God did not intervene to either assist or punish anybody but that a famine, a catastrophe by fire or the destruction of a city as Pompeii was simply the result of some cause. Famine cannot help but come when all that which induces rain has been destroyed, a wooden city, like Chicago, must burn and the eruption of Vesuvius, which buried the cities on its side, would have occurred, had there been not a person living withing miles. The speaker admonished his hearers to sow cheerfulness, to make that home, the greatest institution this side of the stars, the happiest place on earth. The mother presides over the home and to her should be given much. It means little to place flowers upon her casket, when we have not shown our appreciation of her while she lived. The bouquets should be given in life.

"Moral Agriculture." Each man is a soul, housed in a body and to make the best of life the soul should be cultured. To idle away time, to cater to the physical body, to let an opportunity for doing good to pass, is to dwarf one's moral stature, by which each one's usefulness should be judged. You have been given powers to be cultivated and used and there are two things which you should remember, said Dr. Wickersham in closing, "you can postpone your mother's funeral and you have power to sell."

NOTES OF THE CHAUTAUQUA

Five watchmen are patrolling the grounds from before the opening of the meeting session until late in the evening. They are delegated to keep order and allow no one to enter the grounds by any avenues other than the ticket gates. The patrolmen are George Pratt, Jasper Creek, Patrick Connors, Bert Haskins and Edward Viney.

The Morphet and Stevenson Novelty company came here from Colfax, Iowa, and will go after completing their programs, to New Albany, Ind. They recently appeared at the great Chautauqua Assembly at Bolton, Colorado, where the sessions last six weeks each year.

company have been taking care of the larger portion of the crowds in a very satisfactory way. Two extra cars are in service during the entire day and one car leaves the grounds at half past ten each evening to take all those who for some reason are unable to catch the regular cars.

The style among the women now is: no hat and a soft pillow. Last evening the audience learned the Chautauqua greeting and will probably be used on several occasions before the sessions close. A. H. Bartlett of Fort Atkinson was among the Assembly visitors last evening.

PLANNING CIRCUITS FOR COMING YEAR

Wisconsin League Will Expand Next Year Without Doubt—Base Ball Gossip.

Interest on the state league has been transferred from the championship race to the discussion of the plans for next year's circuit. Three weeks ago, in an interview published in The Sunday Sentinel, President Powers outlined two possible circuits for next year, and his suggestions have been taken up in all the league towns and also the towns candidates for places, and out of the discussion now going on the arrangements for next year's league will be formed. Three proposed leagues are being considered.

There is considerable sentiment for a strictly state league, which would mean the dropping of Freeport, and the taking in of three Wisconsin cities, besides Beloit, fourth to take the place of Beloit, which seems likely to lose its franchise on account of the poor support given the good team there this year. Should a strictly state league be formed, Superior, which has been in the Northern league the last two seasons will make an effort to secure admission.

Trolley League Considered. Another plan is to form a trolley league, composed entirely of cities in the eastern and southern part of the state which have good interurban facilities. This would include several cities now in the state league and several others in the Fox river valley which have not had representation in the state league this year. It is conceded for such a league that it would be financially a success.

A third league proposed is a Northern Wisconsin league, to include Superior, Ashland, Wausau, Marinette, Green Bay, and one or two others.

The fourth league under consideration provides for a more ambitious organization than any of the others. It would be more on the grade of the Three I, and would be called the Mississippi Valley league. If this league is formed it will include La Crosse, Winona, Rockford and Freeport, Ill., and several cities now in the Three I, which have expressed a willingness to withdraw from that league should the proposed Mississippi valley circuit be formed.

The state league idea, however, is still strongest in favor, and it is more likely that a strong state league composed of the best of the cities now in it and several others will be formed than that any of the others will be organized. It is expected that President Powers, who is in touch with the baseball sentiment in a score of cities, will exercise the largest influence in determining upon the final plan. The state league seems to surpass the others in interest and in prospect of permanency.

INTERURBAN TALK RIFE IN MADISON

Capital City Seems Assured the Road to Janesville Will Be Built.

One of the surest signs of the coming prosperity of Janesville is the renewal of talk of an interurban between Janesville and Madison. A dispatch from Stoughton, in Dane county, says:

"Six men employed in surveying for the interurban line between Janesville and Madison reached Stoughton yesterday afternoon having completed the work from Janesville to this point. It is understood that they will proceed no further for the present, but the reason why this should be the stopping place we were unable to learn. Mr. Clough is back of the undertaking and it is likely to become an extension of the Janesville-Rockford system of which Mr. Clough is president. The civil engineers engaged upon the preliminary work are from Ohio. Some say that the Madison Traction company has sold to the interurban combination."

The Edgerton Eagle says: "Manager Clough of the Janesville-Rockford interurban line was in Edgerton Sunday. The presence of a party of surveyors working out of here since Saturday has given rise to more interurban road talk. The party started from the W. T. Pomeroy warehouse and has been working toward Janesville via Indian Ford. They are expected to continue toward Stoughton and Madison. Three franchises have been granted for the building of an electric line through Edgerton during the past three years, all of which have been allowed to lapse."

SECRETARY LOEB HAS GONE TO PORTLAND

He Passed Through Janesville Very Recently on His Way to the Exposition.

"No sir, I would not give up my present post as secretary to President Roosevelt for any other governmental position, no, not even a cabinet office," said Secretary William B. Loeb, Jr., who with his wife passed through Janesville the other night on the line of the official Chicago & North-Western private car No. 400 for Yellowstone park for a month's vacation.

"I feel that I have earned this short vacation, and now that there will be but little doing in and about Oyster Bay 'till the peace commissioners arrive in the United States. I am taking this rest in the far Rockies for my health," continued the secretary.

"Do you enjoy the office of secretary to the president?" was asked. "I like it the best of anything I ever undertook," was the reply. "It is in the center of things. I would not trade it for any other job under the government."

Secretary refused to talk politics, because, he was away from "the center of things," on a vacation, and was trying to forget all he could of the whirl and "maddening crowd" of politics and politicians.

"The president's right hand man, as he is known in Washington and at Oyster Bay, expects to do no end of tramping in the Rockies. He has a compact, muscular frame and can stand it. Although he has never excelled in any special line of sports, he is a good all around athlete, and feels grateful for his strong physique, since he realizes the physical as well as the mental tax that his position entails."

Mr. Loeb likes the salt water, and when he is at Oyster Bay in the summer time enjoys swimming in the sound. It is not generally known that Secretary Loeb acts as the president's advisor in many important affairs of the nation, for he enjoys Roosevelt's confidence to the utmost. To him, the president himself has attributed the first suggestion that Mr. Cortelyou, now secretary of commerce and labor, would be a good man for chairman of the selection party at a time when the selection of a chairman had become a perplexing problem.

Secretary Loeb smiles pleasantly when the matter is mentioned of the met portfolio, in case of resignation or the institution of the much-rumored new colonial department, with a secretary at its head, but insists that he is satisfied where he is and has too much to bother about the future.

The story of "how Loeb was found by Roosevelt" is often told in official Washington.

It was when Mr. Roosevelt became governor of New York that there were four stenographers attached to the executive offices at Albany. On being ready one morning during the initial week of his term to tackle a great pile of correspondence, the new governor, now president, said:

"Send me that man I had the first day."

That man he had the first day—William Loeb, Jr., soon became his private secretary and followed him to Washington.

WILLIAM ROSS HAS REACHED SEATTLE

Janesville Party of Tourists Reaches Its Destination in the West.

Seattle, Wash., July 24, 1905. Dear Gazette: Our party left Janesville on Tuesday afternoon, July 13, at 8:20 o'clock. We numbered twenty-three persons. We took a Great Northern Tourists' sleeper which was sent to Janesville over the North-Western line for our private use. The following morning we arrived at St. Paul where six more of our friends joined us. This made our number twenty-nine. Our car had sleeping accommodations for fifty-six, so we had plenty of room both day and night. None were allowed in our car but our own private party and porter. At St. Paul we visited the Pioneer Press building together with other places of interest. At 10:20 a. m. we resumed our journey.

All day long we whirled along on the Great Northern Flyer through Minnesota and North Dakota. All kinds of crops, low and rolling, the entire state of Minnesota, but after we crossed the Red river of the North at Moorhead we observed that the great wheat fields of the Dakotas were getting too much rain and that some large fields were being plowed under for fertilizer. On leaving Grand Forks, N. Dakota we found conditions O. K. and until dark we saw very little but fields of wheat. On getting up early the second morning we found ourselves in the extreme west part of N. Dakota. The prairie is very level across the entire state and for the most part very productive. All forenoon we saw few trees and but few hills—only a sea of short grass with here and there a flock of several thousand sheep, a herd of cattle or a band of horses. Small houses or covered wagons dotted the prairie here and there. These were the temporary abiding places of the stock men. Indian wigwags were also a noticeable feature. Indians with their squaws, and papooses were plentiful at some points. Early in the afternoon we espied the Buttes at our right far in the distance. A little further on the "Little Rockies" met our view at our left. From now on our journey increased in interest each moment. At about five o'clock the real Rockies with snow-capped peaks met our gaze. This scene will long be remembered by those of our party who had never seen mountains. Ever changing scenes of grandeur met our gaze until a late hour (it was not very dark at ten o'clock) when we again retired.

After breakfast on Friday we stopped at the beautiful city of Spokane. This is a substantially city indeed. The numerous falls in Spokane river afford immense water power for operating huge mills and factories. Mines on one side, timber in abundance close by, and the great prairie wheat fields contribute to the rapid growth of the city. "All aboard" and we proceeded on our way. By and bye we reach the Columbia river. At Wenatchee we leave one of our party. Amy Ross will stop here for a few days to visit her uncle Archie Ross and his family. They formerly lived at Broadhead. Now we begin to ascend the Cascades. What we saw during Friday afternoon we can never describe with pen or tongue. The ever changing scenes are grand beyond description. Devils' Den, a canon a thousand feet deep is surrounded with sulphurous rocks. Waterfalls and Cascades are on every hand. One tunnel known as Horse Shoe tunnel enters a mountain, makes a turn and finds daylight again several hundred feet direct below where we entered. Another tunnel more than four miles long is used instead of the noted switch-back which required twelve miles up and down the mountain to get the same distance.

At Snohomish Mr. Geo. Whitmore who had come from Everett to meet us boarded our train. (Mr. Whitmore was formerly of Center, Rock County.) At Everett the Whitmore sisters, Mary and Emma stopped off to visit their brother and family. We resumed our journey to Seattle arriving there just on time, at 8:50 p. m. Here our car was side-tracked where it remained for two days and nights, but was at the disposal of any of our party at any time. Many of the party resumed their journey to Tacoma and Seattle, but some six or seven continued their stay at Seattle. The writer and his family are visiting Mrs. Ross's sister here. Mrs. Minnie Crandall, Mesdames Fox, Smith and Mensur have gone to Victoria for a short visit before going to Portland.

Just a word about Seattle. It is built on ten hills, (Rome was built on seven.) It has so many natural advantages and lies so well from a geographical standpoint that Horace Greeley's predictions may prove true. Toward "On Puget Sound and at the head of Lake Superior will stand two of the greatest cities on the American continent." Seattle has large fresh water lakes within her borders. The government is cutting a canal to these lakes so that by the use of one lock the largest steamers may sail to many parts of the city, and while loading and unloading in fresh water the barnacles will leave the boats. Truly this is a wonderful city. I go to Tacoma tonight for a day or two. Will write again later.

MANY SUNSHINE DAYS IN MONTH

JULY WAS STANDARD IN AMOUNT OF SUNSHINE.

SO SAYS THE THERMOMETER

Growing Conditions Have Prevailed During the Month—Several Hot Days Experienced.

July, the month of sunshine and showers have proved a very delightful one, and has proved an ideal one in all respects. The sunshine has proved beneficial to the growing crops and the showers have also come in for a good share of results in all growing localities. With the exception of about one week of real warm weather, when the thermometer played around 90 and 100 degrees, there were not many discomforts to be experienced during the remaining days of the month, with the exception of an occasional shower, the month has been all that could be expected.

Average Temperature. There is no settled way for arriving at the average temperature question, but those recorded in the table below give the maximum and minimum for the full twenty-four hours and errors in these are not probable as they were taken from a self-registering thermometer. The average low temperature for the month of July was 61.13 degrees. The lowest point to which the mercury descended was 57 degrees, which occurred on the twenty-fourth day. The highest average temperature was 55.13, but on the 17th and 18th the thermometer reached the 100 degree mark. The tabulated record of the weather conditions are here given as follows:

HAIR WON'T FALL OUT. If You Kill the Dandruff Germ With the New Treatment.

John N. Fuller, a well-known citizen of Colfax, Wash., says: "I had dandruff so bad that it caked on my scalp. Hericlide completely cured me." George H. McWhirter, of Walla Walla, Wash., says: "Herpicide completely cured me of a bad case of dandruff of thirty years' standing." They took the only really sensible treatment, a remedy that destroys the dandruff germ—Newbro's Herpicide. Stop dandruff, hair won't fall out, but will grow naturally, luxuriantly. Always itching instantly and makes hair glossy and soft as silk. One bottle will convince any doubter of its merits. Sold by leading druggists. COACHES GO TO STUDY THE GRIDIRON

Publication of New Football Rules Makes the Problem a Trying One.

Football coaches, officials and players of the college game will now begin a study of the changes in the rules which were issued in book form today. These changes refer more to a clearing up of the rules in the minds of officials than in the changing of the game as demanded by those calling for more open play. Probably the first thing which catches the eye is the new field, marked checkerboard fashion from end to end, with the view of permitting the quarterback to run with the ball from almost any spot in the field, providing he runs five yards out from the center. Another which might be also considered as bearing on the open tactics has a ruling requiring a referee to blow his whistle the moment the ball is stopped.

Rule 6 is accented. It refers to the starting of men intentionally to draw the opposing team off side or into a falsely directed break. If the snapperback or center makes any motion as if to snap the ball, it is play. This is an old rule. The opposing team charges on such motion. Now if any player of the side with the ball makes a false start with the view of drawing the other side off their balance, is ordered back as not being in play and the same scrimmage begins over again.

One improvement which referees will appreciate is a rule making all subs report to that official before they can enter the game. No player is permitted to be out of bounds when the ball is being put in play with the single exception of a man holding a place kick. Coaching from the side lines is punished by a ten yard fine. The services captain is now permitted to ask the linesmen the time left to play almost three minutes before the finish of the half.

"Lethargy is a sort of mental rust, which every new idea helps in its decline and fall of away." The decline and fall of a store commences with the first hint of "mental rust" and this first hint usually comes in a tendency to lethargy about advertising. In such a case a "new idea" about advertising is regenerating.

THE NEW GERMAN TARIFF.
The recent action of the German Reichstag in ratifying the new commercial treaties with Russia, Austria-Hungary, Italy, Switzerland, Belgium, Roumania, and Serbia completes the work of preparation of a new German tariff on which the Imperial Government has been engaged since 1898. The new tariff law will go into effect March 1, 1906, and will remain in force at least until the end of 1917.

Under the old tariff imports from the United States have been subject to the lower or "conventional" set of duties, at first under the so-called "Saratoga convention" of 1902, now no longer in force, and later by virtue of the commercial agreement between the United States and Germany of July 10, 1900. By the terms of that agreement this country was granted the conventional rates of duty fixed by the commercial treaties of 1891-1894 between Germany and the seven countries mentioned above in consideration of the reduction of duties on imports into the United States from Germany of argols, brandies, wines, paintings, and statuary, authorized by section 3 of the Dingley Act of 1897. This agreement may be terminated by either country at any time upon giving three months' previous notice. There is, moreover, a "most-favored-nation" treaty between the United States and Prussia, concluded in 1833; this treaty may be terminated upon one year's notice.

The importance of the United States to German foreign commerce is seen from the fact that during the calendar year 1903 this country held first rank among the nations from which Germany receives its imports and third rank among countries of destination of German exports, while in the foreign commerce of the United States Germany was outranked only by Great Britain both in our exports and imports.

The total exports of Germany to foreign countries increased from 750 million dollars in 1891, the year of the adoption of commercial treaties, to 1,243 million in the year 1904, an increase of about 65 per cent. During the same period the imports of the United States from Germany increased from 97 million in the fiscal year 1891 to 109 million dollars in 1904, or only about 12 per cent. The exports from this country to Germany increased in the same years from 93 million to 215 million dollars, or more than 131 per cent.

The principal exports from the United States to Germany during the fiscal year 1904, according to latest accounts of the Bureau of Statistics, were: Unmanufactured cotton, 109 million dollars; breadstuffs, over 16 million dollars; provisions, about 21 1/2 million dollars; manufactures of copper, 11.13 millions; mineral oils, 9 millions; iron and steel manufactures, about 5 millions; unmanufactured tobacco, about 5 millions; wood and manufactures, about 4 1/2 millions; oil cake and meal, about 4 millions; fertilizers, about 2 1/2 millions; and agricultural implements, about 1 1/2 million dollars.

that visitors avoid them, but the residents are so accustomed to the odors that they seem to enjoy them. What the city needs is thorough renovation along the lines which were adopted at Havana at the close of the Spanish war. Then, under competent engineers, a system of sewerage should be established which would be adequate for the future.

The south is noted for lack of energy and ambition. The motto of the average inhabitant is: "Don't do today what can be done tomorrow," and as a result but little is accomplished. The city of New Orleans needs a sprinkling of Northern blood, and the energy that goes with it. The epidemic of yellow fever, now prevailing, may be stamped out, but unless the cause is removed there can be no permanent relief.

Two barbers there were in the village of Orfordville who kept open shop on Sunday mornings for the benefit of the unscrupulous who carelessly let Saturday night slip by without attending to their most urgent tonsorial duties. At length one of them, I. J. Fairhurst, by name, heard the call of the woods and the enchanted pools where the bass were jumping, or mayhap the silvery chiming of the church-bell bidding the faithful to devotions. At any rate he wearied of the Sabbath morning grind and closed his doors. His rival, Cleveland, far from heeding this worthy precedent went right on shaving his own customers and "coppering" some of Mr. Fairhurst's trade. This discouraging aspect of turning over a new leaf and setting an example in Christian citizenship began to sorely grieve Fairhurst and he wrote to the attorney-general, the district attorney, and several other attorneys, calling on them to force his competitor to obey the Sunday closing law and commandment. On his complaint an action has been commenced against Cleveland in Justice George Helmholz's court at Orfordville. It will be tried tomorrow and District Attorney Newhouse will appear for the state. If Cleveland is convicted he will naturally lodge a complaint and have an action started against his reformed rival on the same ground. The latter's evil-doing, of course, dates back several weeks and he has started out to lead a better life, but the law will hardly make any discrimination on that account. Both are likely to be punished, or neither, it would seem.

LENZ DOESN'T HITCH WITH VILLAGE BOARD
Former Proprietor of Ottoman House Fined at Clinton For Billiard Game.

William Lenz, former proprietor of the Ottoman House in Janesville, and the village board of Clinton are at outs. Since saloons were ruled out in that village Mr. Lenz has been conducting a temperance bar and a billiard hall in his hotel. He has taken out no license to operate billiard tables for a compensation and so when Chairman Peters of the board visited the place and saw men playing and paying for the use of the tables he promptly made complaint against the proprietor. Mr. Lenz was fined $11 in justice court but report has it that he continued to operate his tables Saturday night as usual. Chairman Peters again appeared and took notice of what was going on and it is rumored that the genial Lenz will be again hauled into court.

MAKE YOURSELF A COMMITTEE OF ONE
If You Know Something That Will Help the City Make It Known Quickly.

Secretary I. F. Wortendyke of the Janesville Advancement Association will be glad to learn from any one of any factory they know is liable to change its location. The Advancement Association of Janesville will only be a success when everyone turns in and helps to boom the city. The possibility of a family, one, two or a dozen, moving here is a matter that Mr. Wortendyke would be glad to learn about and everyone having the welfare of the city at heart should notify him. If impossible to see him personally call the attention of some member of the committee to it. To boom Janesville successfully everyone must help.

Reported a Hold-Up: Saturday evening a brakeman on the St. Paul road, a stranger in this city, reported to the police that two men had tried to snatch away his watch and chain on West Milwaukee street, but had succeeded only in breaking the chain. Officers Brown and Fanning made a search for the parties but they had covered up their tracks. It appears, according to the trainman's story, that they asked him the way to the depot by way of introduction and when he drew away from them made the attempt to steal his property.

DON FARNSWORTH SEEKING FRANCHISE
Would Establish An Independent Telephone Company in Milwaukee.

Don Farnsworth and Mr. Bills, both of whom have made Janesville their home in the past, are interested in the proposed West Shore Telephone company which is seeking entrance into Milwaukee. Another former Janesville resident, Joseph Doe, is Mr. Farnsworth's attorney. Mr. Farnsworth was in the city recently and told of his project. His company plans to erect a telephone exchange with a board capable of handling twenty-five thousand subscribers. They offer, in fact guarantee to have five thousand phones in operation inside three years. Mr. Farnsworth's company is being fought not only by the Bell company but also by the Milwaukee Home Telephone Company which is also seeking a franchise. In speaking of the matter the Milwaukee Sentinel says:

The two ordinances under which the West Shore Telephone and Telegraph company will be represented by Attorney John W. Wagner, who E. H. Bottom has been retained in the interest of the other applicants. The attorneys for both companies claim that their applications are bona fide and that the necessary capital is on hand to start with the building of the plant as soon as the council has passed the franchise.

Provisions Widely Different.
The provisions of the two ordinances are widely different. The Home company asks for a general franchise, practically the only restriction being that the grants shall be null and void if after four years less than 2,000 telephones are in operation. No mention is made as to the rates to be charged. No limitation is put upon the time for which the franchise is to run.

The West Shore company seems to believe that Milwaukee is a strong field for a competitive telephone system, as it is willing to have its franchise forfeited if it has less than 5,000 subscribers within three years. It requests a franchise for fifty years and offers to sell the entire plant to the city at the end of that time. The ordinance also contains a list of rates to be charged, but it demands the privilege of advancing the price when the number of subscribers has reached 15,000.

Offers Other Inducements.
Other provisions offered as an inducement to the city to grant the requested franchise are: All wires within two miles of the hall shall be laid under ground. After the expiration of twenty years from date of passage the ordinance all wires of the company shall be placed under ground. They city shall have the right to the top crossarm of each pole to be erected; also one duct in each conduit to be laid.

Before laying any conduits all plans shall be approved by the board of public works. The company shall make a cash deposit of $1,000, the amount to be used by the board of public works in case the company has failed to repair any street.

Within three years the company shall have in operation at least 5,000 telephones, and within six months it shall have a plant in operation and have connected its wires with all offices in the city hall.

The company shall be compelled to furnish all necessary telephones for the police and fire department at a rental of $25 per year for each telephone.

The city shall have the right at the expiration of the franchise to purchase the entire plant at a price to be agreed upon by arbitration. After 5,000 telephones are in operation the rental for full metallic long distance telephone shall be as stated in the ordinance.

No Charge for Less Than 5,000.
There shall be no charge for telephones until at least 5,000 bona fide subscribed telephones are in operation.

The ordinance shall not be construed as granting to the company an exclusive right or privilege, or to prevent the granting of similar rights to any other person or corporation.

Green Bay Advocate: It is asserted that the Russian thistle, about which such alarm was raised a few years ago, is now being raised as fodder for cattle in the Dakotas. The latest pest, the dandelion, which is spreading rapidly, has for a long time been considered a table delicacy, while the blossom is used by some in making wine. Before long someone will find a market value for the wild mustard.

FATHER VAUGHAN SPEAKS TONIGHT

LARGEST AUDIENCE OF WEEK EXPECTED AT CHAUTAUQUA

GOOD PROGRAMMES ATTRACT TOWN PEOPLE TO THE SESSIONS DURING THE DAY.

(By Clarence Van Beynum.)

Gazette Headquarters, Chautauqua Grounds.—One of the largest audiences that has yet gathered at an evening on the assembly grounds is expected tonight, the drawing card being Father L. J. Vaughan's lecture, "Sermons from Shakespeare." This great priest's former visits here have only whetted the interest. All who have heard him before are anxious to listen to him this evening and so much has been said concerning his powers as an actor and eloquence as a lecturer that hundreds study. On the part of some there was an opposition to the theories propounded and before the weeks ended the class without doubt was quadrupled. The subject dealt with "The Marriage of the Gases." Dr. Grant has led his hearers thus from the changing chaos into a cloud, the development of the mist into water, the separation of light from darkness, hence the division of wet from dry by a firmament, and then in the inner gloom the segregation of wet from dry, forming seas and land. This forming of "dry" is the marriage of the gases. In speaking he showed a number of beautiful and valuable gems and performed an interesting experiment. The subject of crystallography was slightly touched on and Dr. Grant stated that a crystal never grows. This he said he would reveal to anyone if they wished to spend the time. In mentioning crystals he said quartz is not granite, was the primordial rock. This crystallization of minerals is the marriage of the gases.

VALENTINE LEAVES JURY COMMISSION

But Says Anti-pass Law Has Nothing to Do With Move—Geo. McKay Appointed.

Richard Valentine has resigned his office as a member of the jury commission which draws the jurors for circuit court and Judge Dunsford has appointed George McKay to fill the vacancy. The other members have been re-appointed. They are Robert Moore of the town of Bradford and E. F. Hansen of Beloit. When approached regarding his resignation this morning, Mr. Valentine said that it had nothing to do with the anti-pass law—he was out of town so much that he was unable to attend to the work. The jury commissioners receive $5 a day for their services in addition to 10 cents a mile for travel. They have one session which lasts three or four days, when the names of possible jurors are selected for the drawings, and three other meetings lasting a day each, when they are summoned by the clerk of court to make the drawings.

STATE FAIR PLANS MANY NOVELTIES

Mr. Cox of Mineral Point in City Today to Secure Pony Exhibits.

"You might state for the benefit of the Janesville public that the coming state fair at Milwaukee is going to be a winner and the best ever seen in this state," said Mr. Cox of Mineral Point this morning. Mr. Cox is a member of the state fair board and was here today on business connected with the fair. He was the guest of Dr. E. D. Roberts and G. U. Fisher while in the city and left with Mr. Fisher this afternoon for Milwaukee where they will attend a meeting of the board tomorrow and also inspect the new buildings to be erected before the fair opens in September. This afternoon Mr. Cox and Dr. Roberts drove to the Robert J. L. farm. There they expect to secure a large number of entries for the Shetland pony class at the fair. Mr. Fisher made the statement this afternoon that if the fair was nothing else it promised to be a horse exhibit such as had never been seen in the state before. Mr. Fisher is Grand Marshal of the fair and is much interested in seeing Rock county well represented.

"God knows what the indictment is, chiefly that he is a traitor," I think. He entered the house of lords this afternoon and walked with customary dignity to his place, but was curtly ordered to withdraw until he was sent for, as the commons were at that moment enacting their formula against him. He withdrew in the face of this loud protest, and at last, being called stood before them; was commanded to kneel, which, with some hesitation, he did, while the articles to his disparagement were read from the woolsack. He was then dismissed, and, once in the outer room again, the Black Rod demanded his sword and so conducted him, under restraint, to a carriage; no man of all then present capping to him.

A BOWED AND PALLED FIGURE

although they had been obsequious enough when he entered. A scurvy lot!"

"Where you among them?"

"Not I; I give you the account as 'twas told to me, but had I been in that contemptible company, my hat would have gone lower than ever before."

"You have not seen my father then?"

"He has sent no message by you?"

"I have not seen him, but I come to crave a few words with you in private."

"Sir, you must excuse me. I am so tense with anxiety about my father, I can think of nothing else."

"It is on that subject I wish to discourse. He has set in train a series of events in which I hold a hand, but it is like to go awry through this most unlooked for arrest. That is why I was here this morning, and the commission was to have been completed tomorrow. Did he say anything to you about it?"

"You heard all a moment ago, I saw him for but a moment, and that in your presence."

"I had hoped his lordship made a confident of you, so my mission were the easier of accomplishment."

"If it has to do with his welfare, I am ready to confer with you. Come with me to the library."

But before they could quit the hall they were aware that another was taking advantage of the lull in the street to seek entrance to the mansion. Frances paused to learn the result. This time it was an envoy from Strafford himself, and he brought a letter addressed to "Miss Frances Wentworth." She opened and read the note with eager anticipation, forgetting for the moment all who were standing there.

Sweetheart—You have heard before this what his lordship has yet tried to do in the goodness of God that my enemies shall do me no harm. I am troubled that you should be in London at this time, where I can be of no help to you. It would please me to know that you were safe in the home where you have lived until this present time. Think not that I am to assist me other than by obeying, for I trust in God and the king and in the assurance that I am innocent of the charges malice hath brought against me. Therefore be in no way alarmed, but take yourself straightway to the north, there to wait with your brother, as heretofore, until I send a message for you, which I hope to do right speedily. Travel in comfort and security, and take with you such of my household as will secure both.

My treasurer, John Vollins, will give you all money you require, and this letter is his assurance to fulfill your wishes in this and every respect. Trust in God, give way to no fear, but bear yourself as my daughter. Your loving father, STRAFFORD.

The young woman folded the letter without a word, except to the secretary, to whom she said:

"My father writes in good confidence, seeing no cause for alarm, having assurance of his innocence and faith in God and the king."

Then she led the way to the library, followed by De Courcy, hat in hand. Vollins arose and left them together, whereupon the Frenchman, with some slight hesitation, possibly remembering a different plea on that spot a few hours before, began his recital.

"This morning his lordship, your honored father, requested my assistance in a business which he thought I was capable of bringing to a satisfactory conclusion. It concerned a highly placed personage, whom it is perhaps unnecessary for me to particularize further. His lordship's intention was to present this exalted lady with some gift which she would value for its intrinsic worth no less than its artistic quality, and, as he professed himself no judge of such, preferring to depend upon the well known taste of my nation in delicate articles of merit, also so far complimenting me as to believe that I could, in suitable manner and phrase, present this token to the gracious acceptor of it, he desired my intervention, and I promised so to pleasure him to the best of my poor abilities. On leaving you this morning I made selection of the gift, and furthermore gave him a hint to the recipient of its intended presentation—a hint, I may say, which was received with palpable delight. Judge, then, my consternation when I heard of the earl's arrest, for he had promised to pay me the money tomorrow."

The young man paused, his listener pondering with her eyes on the floor. She had such a deep distrust of him, and was so well aware of the prejudice, that she struggled against it, trying for an unbiased mind. Yet much that he had said coincided with certain things she knew—her father's desire that the queen should cease from meddling in affairs of state to his disadvantage and theirs; his seeming friendship for De Courcy, although he despised him; his intention that she should be civil to him; his disclaimer of all knowledge regarding what a woman valued in a gift when he presented her with a full purse the night before—all these fitted with the Frenchman's story. The suppliant, scrutinizing her perplexed brow, seemed to fear that his chance of getting the money was vanishing, as he continued on the line most likely to offend her to favor his present demand.

"Of course I should not have troubled you in this matter did I not think that if the arrangement your father wished to make was important this morning it is ten times more important tonight. Indeed, his liberty may depend upon it. I am well aware that it is open to me to say to the lady, 'Lord Strafford is in prison and is unable to carry out his generous intentions,' but I fear the deep disappointment will outweigh the force of the reasoning. Your charming sex is not always strictly logical."

"What was the sum agreed upon?" asked Frances, looking suddenly up.

"A thousand pounds in gold."

"The question had been sprung upon him, and he had answered without thought, but as he watched her resolute face a shade of disappointment passed over his own, as if of inward regret that he had not made the amount larger should her determination prove his ally."

"I shall see that you get the money, if not tonight at the time promised."

She sent for Vollins and placed the case before him. The treasurer stood by the table with inscrutable face and listened in silence, his somewhat furtive look bent on the Frenchman.

"Was M. De Courcy some scrap of writing in which your lord signifies that so considerable a payment is to be made?"

"My dear fellow, this relates to business that is not put in writing between gentlemen," said the foreigner hastily.

"I am not a gentleman, but merely the custodian of his lordship's money."

"Cures dizzy spells, tired feeling, stomach, kidney and liver troubles. Makes you well and keeps you well. That's what Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will do. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets, Smith Drug Co."

I dare not pay out gold without his lordship's warrant over his own signature."

"Mr. Vollins," pleaded the lady eagerly, "my father's life and liberty may depend on this disbursement. I will be your warrant. I have money of my own in the north, many times the sum I request you to pay. Should my father object I will refund to you the thousand pounds. Indeed, I will remit it to you in any case, and my father need know nothing of this transaction, therefore you cannot be held in guilt."

"I must not do it," said Vollins. "His lordship is a very strict man of business and will hold me to account. He would forgive you, madam, but would be incensed with me did I consent to be unfaithful to a proposal. I dare not count on a thousand pounds to the first man who steps from the street and asks for it, giving me his bare word."

"But you have my word as well, Mr. Vollins," urged the girl.

"Madam, I beseech you to consider my position. I am but a servant. The money is not mine or yours but yours to it. Yet why all this haste? His lordship can undoubtedly be communicated with tomorrow, and then a word or line from him is sufficient."

"You have an adage, sir, of striking while the iron is hot. The iron may be cool enough by the time your scruples of legality are satisfied," warned De Courcy.

"His lordship can be communicated with. You are quite right, Mr. Vollins," cried Frances, remembering. "He has communicated with me. I ask you to read this letter and then to pay the thousand pounds required of you."

Vollins read the letter with exasperating slowness and said at last:

"There is nothing here authorizing me to pay the gentleman a thousand pounds."

"True, there is not, but my father says you are to pay what money I require. I require at this moment a thousand pounds in gold."

"The money is for your safe conduct to the north."

"You have read my father's letter more carefully than I supposed by the time you took it. He says you are to fulfill my wishes in this and every respect. Do you still refuse me?"

"No, madam, but I venture to advise you strongly against the payment."

"I thank you for your advice. I can certify that you have done your duty fully and faithfully. Will you kindly bring forth the gold?"

Vollins weighed the five bags of coin with careful exactitude and waited further speech. De Courcy fastened them to his belt, then looked about him for his cloak, which he at last remembered to have left in the hall. Vollins called upon a servant to fetch it, taking it from him at the door. The Frenchman enveloped himself and so hid his treasure. The cautious Vollins had prepared a receipt for him to sign, made out in the name of Frances Wentworth, but De Courcy demurred; it was all very well for the coming house, he said, but not in the highest society. The Earl of Strafford would be the first to object to such a course, he insisted.

Frances herself tore the paper in pieces and said that a signature was not necessary, while Vollins made no further protest. She implored De Courcy in a whispered aside to acquit himself of the commission with which her father had entrusted him, and he assured her that he was now confident of success, thanking her enthusiastically for the capable conduct of a difficult matter of diplomacy. Then, with a sweeping gesture of obeisance, he took his courteous departure.

Mr. Vollins deferentially asked Frances to sign a receipt which he had written, acknowledging the payment of a thousand pounds, and to this document she hurriedly attached her signature.

CHAPTER VI.

FRANCES made her way to the north, as her father had directed, and everywhere found the news of his arrest in advance of her—the country ablaze with excitement because of it. The world would go well once Strafford was laid low. He had deluded and misled the good king, as Buckingham had before him. Buckingham had fallen by the knife; Strafford should fall by the axe. Then the untrammelled king would rule well; quietness and industry would succeed this unhealthy period of fever and unrest.

The girl was appalled to meet everywhere this intense hatred of her father, and in her own home she was surrounded by it. Even her brother could not be aroused to sympathy, for he regarded his father not only as a traitor to his country, but as a domestic delinquent also, who had neglected and deserted his young wife, leaving her to the discomfort without even a message from the husband for whom she had almost sacrificed her good name, bearing uncomplaining his absence and her father's wrath.

During the winter Frances saw little of her brother. Thomas Wentworth was here and there riding the country, imagining, with the confidence of extreme youth, that he was mixing in great affairs, as indeed he was, although he was too young to have much influence in directing them. The land was in a ferment, and the wildest rumors were afloat. Strafford had escaped from the Tower and had taken flight abroad, like so many of his friends who had now scattered in fear to France or to Holland. Again it was said the king's soldiers had attacked the Tower, liberated Strafford, and the Black Man was at the head of the wild Irish, resolved on the subjugation of England. Next, the queen had called on France for aid, and an invasion was imminent.

SAVING A HEAT VICTIM

Sun Stricken Reporter Tells How He Was Treated.

PLUNGED INTO A POLAR SEA.

Fallers In a New York Street and
Then Wakes Up Suddenly in an Ice
Bath at Bellevue Hospital—How He Was Handled by a Doctor and His Attendants.

During the recent spell of hot weather the physicians of Bellevue hospital, in New York, have been doing a noble work in the relief of citizens stricken by the heat. Their ministrations are not only successful in saving the life of the patient, but the process to which the sunstricken one is subjected is pleasant and bracing. This account was written by a reporter for the New York World who was recently treated at Bellevue for sunstroke.

It was a curious series of circumstances that sent me to the isolation ward of Bellevue. Too much to eat at irregular hours and not half enough sleep, followed by a wild desire to fight in the hot sun on an important news story, gave me a feeling of awful lassitude and dejection. The work to be done by over east of Second avenue. At 5 o'clock I remember laboring along heavily in a slow walk, my legs feeling like bags of sand and my head throbbing painfully. I felt hot, dry, stifling, feverish.

Suddenly my body seemed to go sailing smoothly in midair, the unneeded legs flailing uselessly under it. All the world was whirling in a mass of red vapor wreaths, and I began to fall. The falling sensation seemed to last for ages. I felt, now fast, now slow, again fast, until I plunged into the polar sea.

Oh, how cold it was! Surely nothing else could be half so cold as this. Dimly my struggling mind began to remember reading somewhere the Eskimo belief that hell is a place of eternal, blinding ice. This surely was that place. Fehr, who nobly stood by his fallen companion, afterward assured me that quite twenty minutes elapsed from the time I dropped like a log on the hot side of Twenty-fourth street until I began flopping like a newly caught fish in the ice water tub at Bellevue, but the mind of the patient recognized no gap between the fall and the ice bath.

I struggled with all the force that was in me to break the grasp of countless hands that held me down in that icy sea. They were not trying to drown me, for nose and eyes always remained above the waves, but surely they were going to freeze me to death, for the cold of the icy sea seemed to strike into the spinal cord itself. With one last gathering of strength I plunged upward. No use. Right hands held me fast. Now I noticed that the eight hands were chafing me ceaselessly from head to foot. Perhaps, after all, their intentions were not murderous. As my mind became clearer I was able to distinguish the face of the man in command, a long, studious face, with a square blue chin and lit by kindly blue eyes that gleamed through glasses.

"Not so bad now," said the face.

"What's his temperature?"

"One hundred and one, six, doctor," replied another face, which I had not seen before.

"Good," said the doctor. "Keep the massage going."

The eight hands flew over the patient's body, rubbing as briskly as the hands of trainers over a football player. There was in the situation a humorous likeness to that of an athlete being rubbed down between rounds. The patient grinned a little at the idea.

"How're you feeling?" asked the doctor.

"Kuk-kuk-kuk-cold," I replied.

"They've got 8,000 cubic miles of ice and salt packed on the top of the back of my head."

"M-m-m," mused the doctor, while he and his three assistants kept on briskly chafing limbs and body.

"What's the temperature?"

"Ninety-nine," answered a voice.

"Good," was the doctor's comment.

"Now, then?"

Lifted by the eight hands, the patient's body was wafted from the icy polar sea to a bed, a small, white cot. I lay back on warm, exquisitely clean woolen blankets and shivered luxuriously. But the ice mountain at the top of the back of my head still felt so intensely cold that it seemed to burn.

The doctor cut the string under my ear and took off a big rubber cap filled with cracked ice. I looked down from the cot and saw beside the bed a long bathtub on four rubber tired wheels. It was painted white outside and made of spotless, highly polished zinc within. A dozen or more crystal chunks of ice floated in the water. The doctor laughed as I looked down into the tub and shivered.

"You'll do," he said. "You're all right."

After a few hours' rest they brought me a bowl of chicken broth and bade me eat it slowly. I have never tasted nectar, but surely it must be something like this. The doctor came in and said I might go home, but I must be sure to get a long night's sleep.

"A knockdown like this takes a lot out of you," he said. "You were not one of the worst cases, but you must be careful. The bath? That wasn't so awfully cold. We never let it get below 55 degrees F. The cold plunge and plenty of massage stimulated your circulation and brought it back to the normal. If you had been a very bad case we would have given you hypodermic injections of digitalis and strychnine to spur the heart to action. But you didn't need that."

"You'll do," he said. "You're all right."

"You'll do," he said. "You're all right."

"You'll do," he said. "You're all right."

BELOITERS HAVE TO RELINQUISH OFFICE

Alderman Hubbard and Commissioner Helm Resign—George Moran Let Go With a Fine.

At the meeting of the Beloit city council last evening the resignations of Alderman Judd Hubbard and Dr. A. C. Helm, member of the fire and police commission, were received and accepted. Both men are identified with the Northwestern railroad. George Moran, into whose saloon the mayor and some of the aldermen entered by a side door after hours recently, appeared before the council to show cause why his license should not be revoked for disobeying both the new ordinance requiring all saloons to be nailed up and the one fixing the hour for turning off the spigots. Mr. Moran is one of the most popular saloon-keepers in the Line City and is a personal friend of every man in the council. When it was found that they would have to take away his license if they did anything at all in the matter, the aldermen decided to turn the matter over to the city attorney. The defendant will therefore escape this time with a fine.

THEY HAD THE KNOT TIED IN ROCKFORD

Hans G. Jaeko and Miss Meta Heinrich Quietly Left Janesville Yesterday.

Hans Jaeko, first lieutenant of the recently organized Janesville cavalry company, formerly of the Seventh U. S. Cavalry and the famous West Point squad, yesterday told the firm members of Baumann Bros. where he is employed that he must have a vacation of a few days. When pressed as to the why and wherefore of this sudden demand, he informed them that he had decided to get married. Further than to say rather unpatriotically that the event would not take place in Wisconsin, he would give them no further inkling of his plans. Miss Meta Heinrich of this city whose home has been at 205 South Bluff street, accompanied him to Rockford and after securing a license the two repaired to the parsonage of the German Lutheran minister where the knot was tied. Where they have gone on their honeymoon trip and just when they will be back are questions no one of their friends is able to answer.
